Presented by: Jill Poole, MD; an Associate Tenured Professor in the Division of Pulmonary, Critical Care, Sleep and Allergy Medicine and Medical Director of Allergy Services at the University of Nebraska Medical Center. She is a board-certified clinical allergist and immunologist with an active laboratory focused on understanding agriculture-related environmental organic dust-induced lung and systemic bone disease.

Activity Outcome: The goal of the webinar is to inform health care providers for farmers and farming exposed workers on the allergic and non-allergic respiratory diseases commonplace to this type of environment. The webinar will provide a general overview of allergic and non-allergic respiratory diseases including asthma, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, hypersensitivity pneumonia, and organic dust toxic syndrome. Viewers of this webinar will be able to recognize the similarities and differences in the presentation, diagnostic approach, and treatment modalities available.

Target Audience: Nurses in attendance who are interested in enhancing their professional practice through knowledge acquisition of allergic and non-allergic respiratory disease in farmers and/or farming exposed workers.

CEU Requirements: Participants will earn 1.0 contact hour of continuing nursing education. Participants must register for the course, view the presentation, and submit the feedback to receive the contact hour.

Fees: $20.00*
